The World Bank's recent report titled Women, Business and the Law 2022 states that Nepal has made the fastest progress among South Asian countries when it comes to combating gender-based gaps. In the report that analyzed the laws of the countries on eight indicators; mobility, workplace, pay, marriage, parenthood, entrepreneurship, assets, and pension, Nepal scored 80.6 points out of 100. The neighboring country, India scored 74.4, Bhutan scored 71.9, and Bangladesh 49.4.

Nepal received 100 points on three indicators; workplace, pay, marriage, 75 points on the other 3 indicators; mobility, entrepreneurship, pension, 80 points on assets, and 40 points on parenthood. But while the numbers look astounding, there still is a long way for Nepal to go. Yes, the subsidies on registration fees and taxes have increased the number of women run-businesses and women-owned properties on paper, but it is worth noting if the women really have control over those assets. Also, it is important to rethink if the indicators where Nepal received full points based on the laws would also receive full points on implementation.

Governance Issues of the Week

1. The impeachment motion against Chief Justice, Cholendra Shumsher JB Rana has received no attention. There is a provision that the proposal has to be informed to the parliament within 7 days, but the matter hasn't been even discussed in the Business Advisory Committee of the House of Representatives for 18 days now.

2. Nepal has administered full COVID-19 vaccine doses to 79.4% of the population, securing fourth among the South Asian countries. But within Nepal, there is still a huge shortfall in the vaccination campaign when observing the data as per geography. Bagmati and Gandaki Province have 96% and 100% vaccinated ratio, while the provinces bordering India such as Madhesh has 61%, Province 1 has 68%, Lumbini has 80%, Karnali has 61%, and Sudurpaschim has 66% ratio.
